Ion mobility spectrometry (IMS) has grown from specialized detection devices to high performance analytical instrumentation used in academic research and in a broad field of applications. IMS has also become an enabling feature for chromatography and mass spectrometry to measure the otherwise impossible.

The annual conference of the International Society for Ion Mobility Spectrometry (ISIMS) serves as the essential meeting among researchers and application scientists in IMS and related fields worldwide. The ISIMS conference facilitates sharing of the latest research achievements and fosters networking and new collaboration opportunities across academia, industry, and government.

NETWORK Connect with attendees come from academia, industry, and government in intimate settings.

OUTREACH ISIMS has a diverse demographic and a vibrant early career research community.

INNOVATION ISIMS showcases cutting edge research and novel applications.

LEARN The short course gives an excellent training to all aspects of IMS, including theory, different IMS types, and tandem systems; with the sought-after hands-on training.

EXPERTISE ISIMS conference is attended by world experts in instrumentation, ion chemistry, engineering, modeling, and a wide range of applications.
